HONDRONG, TURADAY, MARCH 1, 1892. The numerous seizures of sick cattle and of diseased carosses which have of late been made at Kowloon ought to have the effect of awakening the authorities to what seems to be a disgraceful state of affairs existing in that part of the Colony with regard to the food supply. So many prosecutions have been made before the Police Magis rate recently that it is impossible for the Government to plead ignorance of the matter. It is evident, prima jacio, that frequent efforts are being made to supply our market with di-Professor Victor Vala. sessed meat, wholly unfit and unsale for human food, and whilst some of these attempts have been frustreied it is not comforting to contemptate the fact that quite as The Glen Line steamship Gieserfney, from many cases have remained undetected, and that some quaulity of meat-whether large or amail we cannot say -- has found its way into the market and been disposed of as wholesome food. On this side of the water. certain precautions are taken which ought to prevent any such offence. The Government Inspector visite the market daily, and with the establishment of a Cattle Depot, and a system of stamping to certify the soundbess of any animal passing through Per Kucang Lie, et 3.30 p.m., on Wed- the Depot, there does not seem to be, on needay, the 2nd inst the face of it, much danger of diseased meat Company informs us that the Company's heing put up for sale. Provided the L. & Brindin let Singapore for the post animals are examined, both before and after on 20th ultimo, at 5 p.m.

able to detect the different forms of dilease to which sattle are liable, there ought to be no danger whatever. The same system, however, does not obtain on the Kowloon side. There is no cattle depôt there, and only occasional visits by on impector are made ; and it would appear that the Chinese cattle dealers, taking advantage of the lack of efficient supervision, smuggle diseased cattle into British Kowloon when an opportunity can be found. There is more than a suspicion that in order to facilitate their business they themselves put the inspector's mark on the cattle. The traffic in diseased animals seems indeed to have become a special (and no doubt lucrative) branch of the to supply the best growths at moderate cattle-dealing business, one of the peculiaritios of which is that the seller gets a first price per head amounting to what would wanted, and initial letter for quality desired. be about the value of the hide of the animal, and an additional sum in the event of Case. Per Bot. the dealer getting it disposed of as healthy and fit for human food. It goes without saying that the Chinese dealer will, in 1.10 these circumstances, do all he possibly can to enable the foreign community to feed on bad beef; and se the ordinary consumer, when a piece of meat comes before him in a nocked state, is totally unable, even by the most critical examination of it, to detect anthrax or pneumonia or any of the other illa that bovine flesh is heir to, he is practically at the mercy of the unscrupulous dealer. The law already provides for the establishment of a depot where cattle could be kept under observation for a few days, and for the killing and burying of animals in which any sign of disease should develop; but there are no means at present for carrying out these very necessary provisions of the law. Inspector Hanson of the Koyloon district has been the means of bringing several of the diseased mest-dealets to justice, and the on betantial fines imposed by Mr. Wise ought to have the effect of checking the obnoxious and dangerous traffic to some extent at least, but it takes a great deal to make a Chinaman give up a profitable hosiness, however illegal it may be; and, besides, the detection of disease either in cattle before they are killed or in the meat Case. Per Bot. | afterwards, when it is exposed for sale, is not a matter that should be left to the police; for even if the atmost vigilance on the part of the police could be relied on, they are not competent to do the work, and it is of far too great importance to the

A CORRESPONDENT at Chefoo sends the following to the N. C. Daily News under date the 16th instent :- To day there was pointed out to me the gentleman to whose presence of mind and abnormal strength the saving of the s.s. Alwine Soud is said to have been due. She had emptied her water tanks, as you may have heard, and had drawn as near as practicable to the wreck, when a fierce north blow set in and caused her to make for shelter with all speed. Without ballast, and in such a sea the danger was all too imminent. She reached a place of seeming safety but was fast harrying on to a reef which would have proved certain destruction to her, when the gentleman mentioned (Messra. Fornham & Co,'s Agent), altogether unaided picked up the anchor and dropped it overboard. It held; the ship was saved. His hands stuck to the cold iron, the frost was so severe, and as the anchor left his hands the skin-was completely peeled off. What between the salt spray and the bitting frost after that, his hands must have been in a bad state. I noticed that he had them well wrapped up to-day.

Mr. Inngaki Manjiro, author of Japan and the Pacific, severely condemns the abolition of the Japanese Consulate at Hankow. He writes an interesting article on the subject in a recent number of the Kokumi no-Tomo, unhesitatingly denounce ing as rash and blind the section of the Japanese Government in this instance. The first step towards achieving this ambitious goal is to secure the yest and inexhaustible market of China. The Government ought to do its utmost to extend Japanese trade in China, and of all measures poluting to that end, the most important, he thinks, is to induce Japanese merchants to go to Hankow and establish themselves there before mer chapts of Western nations can acquire a preponderating position. -NOTES FROM NATIVE PAPERS. Li Kuel chien, the alleged Kolao mem-The Government Surveyor should be her who was arrested in the city of Shanghal and taken to Nanking, underwent his first examination on the 17th Feb. The Court was composed of two prefeats and three magistrates, and the examination was held in the yamen of the Nanking district magistrate. Li Kuel-chien deposed that Rules made by people influenced by a he always lived a retired life never interforing with anything not concerning himself. As to whether in Hung was a Koing leader or whether he had anything to de with purchasing arms and ammunition, the prisoner denied knowing anything whatever. In reply to the question as to how his logs were fractured, the accused said that they had been broken by Shanghai yamen runners with an iron rod. The Court then told the prisoner that he had all along been committing many anlawful acts, that his father in consequence had discovered him, that it was only natural to infor that he, being such a bad character, might have joined the society and that he had better confess the truth. Li in answer stated that he lost the love of his perente by a fondness for fast society, spending a great deal of money, gambling and living a debauched life, but that, beyond these sins, he had no others, much less that of becoming a Kolao. He hoped the court would soon, by investigation, learn his innoceuce. He was remanded in the inner; apartment of the prison formerly occurled: by Wan Sung-ting, who was removed to the outer apartment, to provent any communication between the two prisoners. Two days afterwards another examination was held, but Li adhered to his previous statements without variance or addition. The prisoner showed the greatest possible obstinacy, and though placed in a kneeling posture on coils of chains and stretched on a bare pole he simply exclaimed that he was innocent.
